Urbanization & Land Use in Central Florida

The agriculture and natural resources industry in Lake, Orange, Osceola, and Seminole counties provides residents with food, erosion control, water-recharge areas, and the beauty of natural areas.

The industry is being impacted by the growth of urban areas, and continued growth in our area will lead to more development, traffic, and possible pollution. This growth must be well-planned and handled responsibly.

The agriculture and natural resources industry is planning responsibly by:

- Voluntarily forming conservation partnerships
- Sharing natural areas with local citizens through land preservation agreements
- Using only a small percentage of tax revenue for needed services in comparison with residential properties
